

A complete re-testing of all residents and staff who had tested negative in the first round of universal testing was conducted earlier this week on Wednesday, May 27th. Today, Friday, May 29th, results showed eight additional positive tests for residents and two additional positive tests for staff.

While we expected some of those tests to come back positive, simply because of the nature of this virus and the realities of a congregate living setting, it is nonetheless difficult news.

We continue to follow guidelines and safety protocols set forth by the CDC and continue to actively monitor the residents for any signs of new or worsening symptoms.

We appreciate the support of resident loved ones as we work to meet the needs of the residents we serve, while aggressively fighting this virus within our community.
